

The Dresher Center for the Humanities Invites You to Join the Conversation on April 23rd

“Multiple Communities, Multiple Stories”

Creative Alliance (3134 Eastern Ave, Baltimore, MD 21224)

Community Conversation: 12:30 P.M. – 2:30 P.M.

Digital Storytelling Workshop: 2:45 P.M. – 4:30 P.M.

In the aftermath of the death of Freddie Gray in April 2015, we need conversations that bring together a variety of voices and communities to address the intersections of poverty, race/ethnicity, and gender and help create new stories about Baltimore.

This event will highlight stories of identity, belonging, and activism from several Baltimore communities through conversations about the past, present, and future of the city. Participants will explore questions of immigration, change, community relations, and social equity and will discuss how residents' experiences are shaped in and through their neighborhoods. After the conversation, participants can also learn how to use digital storytelling as a way to record and disseminate their voices.

Community Conversation

Mapping Dialogues Project: Baybrook

Members of the Brooklyn-Curtis Bay communities and Nicole King (American Studies) and Stephen Bradley (Visual Arts)

Highlandtown Cultural Heritage Project

Members of the Greektown community and Michelle Stefano (American Studies)

Identity, Immigration and Belonging

Members of the Hispanic/Latino community and Ana María Schwartz Caballero (MLLI)
and Viviana MacManus (GWST)

Equity Across City Communities

Michael Scott, President and Co-founder of Equity Matters and A. Adar Ayira, Baltimore Racial Justice Action

Digital Storytelling Workshop (separate registration)

With Bill Shewbridge (MCS) and Tania Lizarazo (MLLI)

THE BALTIMORE STORIES PROJECT HAS BEEN MADE POSSIBLE IN PART BY A MAJOR GRANT FROM THE NATIONAL ENDOWMENT FOR THE HUMANITIES.