The February Winter Storms

The weather in Baltimore this winter has been very harsh. We had a great deal of winter storms. The storm on February 21st in particular really had people talking. Schools and Universities closed the day before in preparation of this storm.

Areas in Maryland recorded 6 - 10 inches of snow. There was a CODE BLUE alert during the storm because of the extreme cold temperatures. Many people underestimated the intensity of the storm. The icy conditions made the roads hard to handle causing some drivers to abandon their cars on the road. It didn't take long for highways to become parking lots. The warmth of the most recent weeks is a welcomed change to commuters and we are ready for more to come in spring.
